WRITING TASK 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

International travel is becoming cheaper, and countries are opening their doors to more and more tourists.

Do the advantages of increased tourism outweigh its disadvantages?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

Write at least 250 words.

Original answer -

In a world increasingly defined by globalisation, international travel is becoming more and more affordable, with countries welcoming more tourists to their shores than ever before. While this trend may bring about issues such as cultural tension and gentrification, its advantages are far greater, including economic growth, cultural exchange, and international understanding.

Beneath the surface of tourism lies a simple economic reality: tourists represent robust flows of foreign capital, which may prove crucial for the local economies. In Vietnam, tourism has transformed Phu Quoc Island from a backwater area into a bustling town, capable of welcoming hundreds of thousands of travellers while providing thousands of jobs for the locals.

The logic of tourism also extends far beyond the realm of economies. When tourists explore local areas, they often have the opportunity to learn about the ways of life of the people residing there, broadening their cultural horizons and fostering cultural tolerance. Over the last few decades, tourists coming to Vietnam from Ukraine have actively sought not only to enjoy the natural landscapes but also to learn about the culture of this country. Some have decided to permanently settle here and work to promote the relationships among the people of the two nations. In this sense, tourism can be seen as one of the catalysts for peace and stability.

Admittedly, tourism can be a source of cultural tension. In Thailand, widespread indignation and resentment among the locals toward tourists was once fuelled because some tourists refused to take off their shoes before entering a temple. More insidiously, sometimes, rich visitors may decide to reside and invest in the local property market of a country, inflating house prices. This can lead to social polarisation, as the locals cannot afford houses, which in some countries are regarded as the bedrock of middle-class stability. Nevertheless, these issues can be tackled with the right measures, including educating tourists before they enter the host countries and limiting foreign ownership of local properties.

In conclusion, while tourism undoubtedly carries its issues, they can be addressed with the right measures. Ultimately, tourism is often perceived as some wealthy tourists travelling to see the world, but it should be understood as a boost of the economy, a gateway to cultural understanding, and a catalyst for solidarity.

TR – Task Response nb – GRA and LR errors have not been corrected

Band score 9

There is a natural reluctance on the part of examiners to award a band 9 overall. This is because when their marking is reviewed by their examiner trainer, the overall score must be within half a band score of the “correct” score as determined by the examiner trainer. For the examiner, it’s more risky to give a 9 than an 8.5, as the latter would cover 8, 8.5, and 9. Examiners don’t want to read 350 words, and by writing 350+ you’re making it less likely that they’ll award a 9.

Excellent answer - I can't think of any reason why an examiner wouldn't give you a 9.

You have a clear position throughout and all parts of the question are addressed.

- fully addresses all parts of the task
- presents a fully developed position in answer to the question with relevant, fully extended and well supported ideas

ADVICE ON BRAINSTORMING FOR TASK 2

As you're planning and writing your answer, remember to constantly ask yourself if you're answering the question. Check back to the question a few times as you think of ideas to make sure they're directly relevant.

- Make sure your introduction directly addresses the question.
- Make sure your ideas address all parts of the question. If the question asks for solutions, in the plural, you must suggest at least 2.
- Make sure your main ideas, as stated in the first sentence of the main body paragraphs, are directly relevant to the question.
- Make sure your supporting ideas, which follow the main ideas in the main body paragraphs, directly support the main idea.
- Be especially careful if you've answered similar question before, as there will always be important differences.
- Make sure your conclusion directly answers the question, that it is consistent with the ideas in the main bodies, and that it does not contradict the introduction.

PARAGRAPHING FOR TASK 2

I recommend you write 4 paragraphs as follows:

- Write an introduction, that explains what the question is. After reading the introduction, the reader should have a good idea what the essay is about, and what your position (opinion) is. It should be possible to write an introduction in under 50 words. It is not necessary to write a long background statement.
- Write 2 main body paragraphs. This should allow you to expand on the ideas sufficiently to persuade the examiner that you've fully supported the main ideas. If you write 3 main bodies, it is more difficult to expand and support them sufficiently to get a high score.
- If it's a two-part question, answer the questions in the order they're given and write one paragraph per question.
- The main body paragraphs should be 100-120 words, and each paragraph should have a clear topic sentence and 2 or more supporting ideas which support the topic sentence with reasons, evidence, and examples. Do not waste time with lots of background information.
- The topic sentences should directly address the question.
- The conclusion should be consistent with the introduction and the main ideas, and it should not introduce new ideas. It should directly answer the question. Do not leave the examiner in any doubt about whether you've answered the question.
- If you write a third paragraph in a discuss both sides question to clarify your position, make sure that give a good reason to reject one of the sides. If you just restated the original ideas about one side, the examiner may decide you have covered one side more than the other.
- It is also ok to write a third body paragraph in a to what extent question if you have main ideas which both agree and disagree with the proposition. Avoid short paragraphs, with under 70 words, as it may be difficult to show a clear central topic in a short paragraph.
